

HomeschoolBlogger Parent/Guardian Consent Form

Use of HomeschoolBlogger.com and related websites (collectively, "Website") is subject to all of the Terms of Use and legal notices posted online at http://www.homeschoolblogger.com/legal_notices.php.

Website Content is produced by various third-party users, may contain graphic material and may concern adult or mature topics and subject matter. Portions of Website Content may not be appropriate for children. Although some children may blog on portions of Website, Website is not directed to or intended for unsupervised use by children. The Old Schoolhouse Magazine, LLC, ("Company") and Website strongly recommend that parents and guardians actively participate in and supervise use of the Internet by their minor children.

Company and Website require parental permission in order to permit a minor to establish a blog or personal account on Website. Please note that Company and Website do not ask for subsequent parental consent for blogging activities or other use of Website, and that parental consent is applied on a site-wide basis. This means that after you sign this consent, your minor child can freely access all Website features and all Website Content. If you do not wish for your child to use or access any portion of Website, including all Website Content, you should not give your consent. You must prepare and sign separate consents for each of your minor children. The completed consent forms should be faxed to Company and Website at 267.502.0261, Attention: Tia, or mailed to The Old Schoolhouse Magazine, LLC., Attention: HSB Parental Consent, P.O. Box 8426, Gray, Tennessee 37615.

I, _____, represent that I am the parent or legal guardian of the following named minor child: _____ ("Child"). I hereby grant permission for my Child to create a personal account and/or a blog on Website, to create, post, edit, provide and/or upload information and other Website Content to Website, and to access, read, use and participate in all features and portions of Website, which includes the Internet Website located at <http://www.HomeschoolBlogger.com>, along with related and affiliated websites and web pages.

I agree to supervise and to accept full personal responsibility for my Child's use of Website, including without limitation all Website Content created, posted, edited, provided and/or uplinked to Website from or by any person using my Child's account. I represent and warrant that: (a) I have read the Terms of Use and all other legal notices posted at http://www.homeschoolblogger.com/legal_notices.php ("Legal Notices"), (b) I understand their terms and legal consequences, (c) I have reviewed the Legal Notices with my child, and (d) I accept personal responsibility for my Child's use of Website, including without limitation compliance with all portions of the Legal Notices.

I agree that Company and Website may suspend or delete access to my Child's personal account and/or blog and may remove Website Content which Company and Website deem to violate the Terms of Use and other Website policies, and I agree to such suspension and/or deletion. Company and/or Website staff may, but need not, contact me to report inappropriate use of my Child's personal account and/or blog, violations of the Terms of Use and other Website Policies. I specifically waive any and all right to advance notice or contact prior to suspension, termination and deletion of my Child's blog and personal account, and agree that Company and Website may permanently delete any and all information and other material posted on or created as part of my Child's blog, without liability or obligation to my child, to me or to any third party.

I understand that use of Website, related websites and services may result in exposure to Website Content that I or my Child find offensive, indecent or objectionable and agree to hold Company and Website harmless from and against any responsibility or liability for offensive, indecent or objectionable content and conduct.
